The base is made from grains grown on Hven. From soil to table, brewed, distilled and matured at Hven. Using a mixture of grains, the wheat gives vanilla sweetness and a certain bitterness; the rye for caramel and herbaceous notes while the corn lends floral and elegant nuttiness. They also use malted grains, which contribute to bready tones with hints of chocolate and fruitiness. The above grain distillates are aged for 3-5 years in new oak barrels of both European and American origin. Then the different grain distillates are mixed with Hven's malt whisky and the blend is then allowed up to a further 12 months to age, this time in oak barrels that previously contained sweet PX sherry and Spanish red wine. The name "Old Hare" is a tribute to the German field hares that are found in countless quantities on Hven.
